The Union Savings Bank has let contracts for the remodeling of its bank offices. The present office was arranged with a view of accommodating two institutions, and without sufficient room for the customers of a large commercial bank such as the present owners of the Union Savings hope to evolve—through the consolidation of this bank and the Marcantile Bank.

The entire south side of the office will be turned into a lobby, and offices for the officers. The wooden fixtures will be removed and marble ones substitutes.

The pool that controls practically all minority holdings of Georgetown Gas is composed of R. H. Goldsborough, Robert D. Weaver and Tom L. Hume, with a block held elsewhere. Stock has been gathered in from every strongbox.

PURPOSE OF THE ORGANIZATION

- When E. Quincy Smith, late po of the Union Savings Bank recei offer to go to New York, and decided accept it, this syndicate was formed to many hundreds.

After acquiring the stock of the Union Savings Bank in sufficient amount to control the organization, the syndicate bought the Mercantile Bank, operating under an Arisona charter, and located at the corner of Ninth and G Streets Northwest. This institution was then consolidated with the Union Savings Bank.

"The Bank Syndicate was organized." said C. L. Bowman, cashier of the Union Savings Bank, "for the purpose of acquiring control of banks by purchase, when-go still further should desirable openings offer. It is an entirely harmonious body with sufficient capital at its command to be an important figure in Washington financial circles."

The dinner was in the nature of a get-together proposition, congratulations master. The speakers were chosen large-ly from the active men of the syndicate whose names appeared above. The principal guests were Eldridge E. president of the United States Trust Company; W. H. Saunders, president of the Park Savings Bank, and stock market are said to be larger than at any time since the start of the recent rise to late high prices. Southern Railway seems to be favored among low-priced stocks as a pu on this setback for a big pull, Attention is directed to the point that the New York banks are apparently stronger in resources now than they were at the time the crop funds began to move West.

Important absorption of Reading for much higher prices later is said to have occurred on the Balkan war scare.

Odd lot buying is reported to be taking place on this break for outsiders, espe-cially in Steel and Union Pacific. A little has been found in low-priced rails.

ACTRESS SUES HOTEL MAN FOR ALLEGED BREACH OF PROMISE

New York, Oct. 15.-Ruth L. Trufant, former actress, who is suing Harry G. Williams, proprietor of the Hotel York, tor breach of promise to marry her, to-day filed a bill of particulars in this suit. She said that he promised to make her his wife on Christmas day, 1904, in her rooms at the Hotel York. Two days later he said to her "Now we can be married soon. I will marry you as soon as the law permits me to do so. We as the law permits me to do so. We will be married next Christmas."

Miss Trufant says that Williams persuaded her to give up her work on the comic opera stage and to study languages and music in order to fit herself for society. She went abroad to study. Williams told her, while they were riding in Paris, she says, that he would shoot himself unless she promised to be his bride. At another time he told her he would settle $50,00 on her. Last Christmas he told her frankly: "I won't marry you. The reason is I have a wife whom I won't divorce."
